

West wing of the project

In the main building, work focused on the organization of spaces. Work and storage spaces are distributed along the north facade, to bring southern light into large open spaces such as the showroom or the modular workspace.

The Robinot, a canal currently running under the building, is invited to come into the project. From the walkways on the upper floor, it is possible to see the activities taking place on the first floor and enjoy the light provided by the dome, which opens up to the sky. The different work spaces created in this way, with their distinctive qualities, offer a wide range of possibilities for visitors to the site.

In this project, the diversity of spaces and activities proposed will attract a varied and active population, which will upgrade and revitalize the town of St Marie aux Mines, while highlighting and celebrating its historical heritage.
